Playing online Android games can be fantastic fun, but as more and more people are joining the fun, it can also be frustrating. We suggest only downloading free online games if you like the idea of being able to play your game anytime you want without having to worry about setting up and saving your progress on your device. Otherwise, there are a number of reasons you might want to play your games offline on your computer instead. If you're playing your games online, particularly if you're playing random games online, then you'll need to take precautions in case you are hit with a virus. If you download games illegally, you may run into problems that can make it impossible to even access your account after all. For example, if you sign up for a game or want to play a game that requires you to enter credit card details and you download the game via a website that will then attempt to sell your credit card details on to others, then it's likely that you'll never see your new account again. Another possibility is that you'll download a virus. These are usually programs that take advantage of unused or spare computer memory and display a jumbled mess. These are impossible to get rid
