This multi-level interconnection causes crosstalk between the signal lines. For example, in a multi-layer substrate, the die usually contacts the ground planes of one or more of the layers. The output pads of the die also are connected to the ground planes of one or more of the layers. This means that the output pads of the die are effectively coupled to the ground planes and to the input pads of other die through the substrate. The ground planes are typically connected to each other by vias to minimize the distance between the ground planes in any one layer. The via is also coupled to the input pads of the die through the substrate, thereby causing increased crosstalk between the die and the ground planes. Although the ground planes can be far enough apart that the crosstalk is minimal, there is an advantage to minimizing the distance between the ground planes in the substrate to reduce the size of the package and also to reduce the inductance of the package. Thus, there is a need for a method and an apparatus to minimize the crosstalk between the ground planes.Conventionally, a panel-shaped substrate to be mounted on a chassis of an in-car audio system such as a radio receiver or a television receiver has been known. The chassis is mounted with a speaker unit and other components to construct the in-car audio system. In
