What's new:

The UK's Premier League of Women's Football was a professional women's soccer league that existed in the United Kingdom from 2013 to 2016. The league was formed on 19 September 2012 by the English Football Association with funding provided by the Premier League with a start date of July 2013. It was officially announced at a press conference on 7 November 2012. The league featured 12 teams, which played over the course of 26 weeks. The league was officially launched on 13 July 2013, when the first ever game was played at London's Lane Cove Park, with Chelsea Women defeating Nottingham Forest W.F.C. Ladies 7-4 with goals by Jill Scott and Aneta Štěpová. The league ended in 2016 when the remaining clubs agreed to become part of the FA Women's Championship. History The decision to launch a top flight of English women's football was taken in June 2012, as Premier League owners set about creating the new league. This was made possible following the new FA Women's Super League being launched in April 2012, and the creation of the FA Women's Super League 2 in August 2012, where the top two clubs per division qualified for the proposed new top flight. It was also revealed that Manchester City F.C. and Fulham F.C. would be leaving the FA Women's Premier League National Division, which was rebranded as the FA Women's Super League National Division for the 2013 season. The concept for a new women's league was led by former Arsenal and England Women's Football Head Coach Tony Pulis and former Director of Women's Football at Portsmouth Sophie Wilson. Pulis and Wilson convinced Premier League Clubs Manchester City, Chelsea and Tottenham Hotspur to participate, plus other British Clubs including Chelsea, Leeds United, Notts County, Preston North End and Sunderland. The 12 clubs eventually selected were Arsenal, Aston Villa, Brighton & Hove Albion, Bristol Academy, Doncaster Rovers Belles, Chelsea, Everton, Glasgow City, Leeds United, Leeds City Centre, Notts County, Preston North End, Sunderland and Tottenham Hotspur. It was revealed in July 2012 that A Class and B Class amateur teams would be included at the second tier of the new Women's Super League, with the top six sides in both divisions qualifying for promotion. This meant no fewer than 20 clubs in total would be competing. The clubs at both levels played a knock-out competition to determine promotion. For the autumn of 2012, and in order to provide

Kill it with fire! Story: While Donnam, aka “the black sheep of the Donnam family” has just graduated from university, he embarks on an adventure to discover if his father was right. He attempts to prove that the town of Donnam, Maine is a boring, silent world of grey, while after years of separation from the town, his older sister, Shana, attempts to help him find his way there. Donnam wants to meet the town people, and knows that it will be impossible without a body to accompany him. However, he doesn’t want Shana to notice this fact, so he casts a spell to make himself invisible. His plan is that he’ll be able to get around more easily, therefore visiting more people, and finding out more about his family, especially about his father. Donnam then has a few tricks of his own to help him out. For example, he can let people talk to him for a certain amount of time, or get information by doing things like destroying a paper question riddle. But, one day, he discovers that there is a whole society in Donnam, and that the citizens are happy and well-loved. The mysterious Stranger gives Donnam the idea of "Flashiness", which is the idea of copying the flash of a firefly and bring it about in an object. Storyline: Donnam is about to leave for Donnam, Maine, the town he lives in, where his sister, Shana lives. He's on his way on a magical boat, that is a gift from his uncle.
