Gyrowolf © 2017 Language: EnglishQ: T-SQL : Select all rows between two time stamps, only if the time stamp occurs more than once I'm just looking for the most efficient way to query the rows of a table between two times: the start and the end time. The catch is this: if two time stamps are recorded in the same row in the table, I only want to include the first of those two rows. For example: | id | time_stamp | 1 2016-10-16 00:15:00 2 2016-10-16 00:15:00 3 2016-10-16 00:45:00 4 2016-10-16 01:01:00 5 2016-10-16 02:45:00 6 2016-10-16 03:45:00 Then the rows in this example should be included: | id | time_stamp | 1 2016-10-16 00:15:00 3 2016-10-16 00:45:00 This gets more complicated if you have say 10 minutes in a row: | id | time_stamp | 1 2016-10-16 00:00:00 2

The addition of a capacitor part to the inside of a semiconductor integrated circuit and the shrinkage of the gate length of MOS transistors in recent years have increased the resistance of wiring material per unit length. In a semiconductor integrated circuit, the increase in the resistance of wiring material per unit length is a factor leading to the increase in the power consumption in the entire circuit.
