Q: Build Multiple iOS Apps In AWS with In-Process WebSocket? I am building a framework that connects devices, and I want them to be able to communicate over wifi and Bluetooth, using the In-Process WebSocket API. I envision an API that each connected device would call to get the current state of the entire system, or one class/object per state should be exposed to a device in order for it to communicate. As far as I know, the In-Process WebSocket API is only

A: That dependency has to be solved in the architecture, so that the web server end will have to be modified and working on the existing server structure, having this one exception, where a gateway is maintained to send the messages from AWS to the device, For my framework I am building an component that receives messages and need to connect to the devices, but those devices run on non-connected devices, like Amazon's Echo or the FireTV, those devices are connected to the Tv, but are offline, but I will be able to send messages directly from the gateway on the device to the device where the Echo or the FireTV is
